and loss are the criteria of success," Secretary of Defense Forrestal once commented. "In government, your rewards for successful work are much less tangible. They come from the inner satisfaction of taking part in the most important and powerful and complicated team in the world, and not from individual compensation."

There are scores of examples which could be cited to illustrate this point. One in particular comes most readily to mind.

It is the case of a European diplomat whose own words tell far better than anyone else's the tremendous task he has undertaken. This man, a Protestant, makes impressive reference to the work of the Christophers. (An American friend of his in California, a Catholic, was the one who sent him the Christopher literature mentioned in the letter which follows):

"... and I have just returned from the Congress of Europe at The Hague where, much to the amusement of my political friends, I chose to serve on the cultural committee in preference to either the political or economic. The cultural committee was made up of churchmen, artists, writers, and thinkers from twenty European nations who were charged with deliberating upon the nature of the common stock of ideas and morals in Europe. I thought this the most fundamental issue in any attempt to unite Europe. A civilized society cannot be maintained by political and economic arrangements alone. Men aren't like ants. They need to believe in their civilization and be willing to make sacrifices to improve it and defend it.

"So we decided that a Charter of Human Rights must be accepted by all Europeans. Of course, I said that behind the Charter would be required the inspiration and strength of a revealed religion; and I quoted the action of your Christophers in pressing that the Declaration of Independence be taught in all States. This impressed the Congress who were at least two-thirds Christian inwardly as well as outwardly; the atheists put up a poor show and were soon defeated."

YOUR PARTICULAR NICHE IN GOVERNMENT

Direct, personal participation in a specific position is, of course, the most constructive means of shaping the character of your government, as has been pointed out previously. Without dwelling further on this particular phase of your participation, there are two principles which it would be well to bear in mind.

One is that a public position, from the lowliest civil servant on up to the President of the United States, is a public trust. If there be corruption in high places, there will be cynicism in low places. People will begin to look upon all government as rotten, will learn to look upon democracy as an ugly farce, will lose faith in democratic leadership. For you, as a Christopher, to hold public office, whether as a tax collector or as a Congressman, means that you will have to devote yourself to strengthening the belief of the common man in the efficiency and honesty of free, democratic government. In short, put public welfare above personal gain. Don't go in to do well for yourself but to do good for others.

A second principle for a Christopher is to prove to the people that they can be free and still be fed, that great liberty and good living can go hand in hand. Failure to meet the economic needs of the people through an intelligent use of government can create a loss of faith just as surely as corruption in government destroys interest in our free way of life. Economic chaos creates political chaos, and out of political chaos arise dictatorships and world upheaval.

If, however, you cannot go into the field of government yourself, you can still be listed in either of two classifications: the electorate or the loyalty group.

The Electorate

By the electorate is meant all those who are eligible to vote. To be part of the electorate is to be the inheritor of agencies to care for the sick, the blind, the indigent, and the delinquent. Trade union members use these agencies, and trade unions often set up departments to guide their members in the use of such facilities. In some cases, trade union representatives even sit on the local or national boards of these community agencies.

Political

With functions as broad as those already listed, it is obvious that union organizations are more than casually concerned with legislation and government, since both these are directly associated with the civil and economic life of our country.

This being the case, unions have also a political function. They have urged, and continue to urge, certain legislation concerning minimum wages, child labor, limitation of working hours (especially for women), prison labor, and acts pertaining to the legal relationships between labor and management. In addition, they are intensely interested in other general legislation which touches on the everyday life of the American workman, such as housing laws, slum clearance, health services, and even foreign policy.

In a very real sense, then, unions may be the voice of the working class community; and, while they speak for the wage earner, they help also to shape the attitudes of the men and women who labor for a living.

Naturally, it is small wonder that the Nazis and Fascists tried—and the Communists still try—to penetrate the unions in order to dominate their functioning apparatus and thus determine their courses of action. Also, it is extremely enlightening to note that the Fascists, Nazis, and now the Communists

(38.) "If you love them that love you, what reward shall you have? Do not even the publicans this? And if you salute your brethren only, what do you more? Do not also the heathens this?" (Matt. 5, 46-47)

(39.) "As long as you did it to one of these my least, you did it to me." (Matt. 25, 40)

(40.) "Dost thou see this woman? I entered into thy house; thou gavest me no water for my feet; but she with tears hath washed my feet, and with her hairs hath wiped them. Thou gavest me no kiss; but she, since she came in, hath not ceased to kiss my feet. My head with oil thou didst not anoint; but she with ointment hath anointed my feet. Wherefore I say to thee: Many sins are forgiven her, because she hath loved much. But to whom less is forgiven, he loveth less." (Luke 7, 44-47)

(41.) "Amen, I say to you, this poor widow hath cast in more than all they who have cast into the treasury: For all they did cast in of their abundance; but she of her want cast in all she had, even her whole living." (Mark 12, 43-44)

(42.) "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do." (Luke 23, 34)

(43.) "They that are in health need not a physician, but they that are ill. Go then and learn what this meaneth: I will have mercy and not sacrifice. For I am not come to call the just, but sinners." (Matt. 9, 12-13)
